Course Description

At present, Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are adopted as conceptual goals for international cooperation. In order for global improvement, they have the goals for 17 items including poverty, education, food, environment and gender. Institutions engaged in international cooperation as The United Nation, individual governments, international organizations, and NGOs, are working on SDGs to achieve as many goals as possible. This course is divided into the first and second half, in which theoretical work and practical work in workshop are involved.
