Course Description

As of now, Korea is amid most complex situation surrounding the nuclear development in North Korea posing as an existential threat to not only South Korea but also the U.S. and the rest of the world. Security for Pyeongchang Olympic was barely assured by South Korea`s efforts towards the participation of North Korea. With the change of administration comes changes in policies towards North Korea when the world is in crisis over the fast developing nuclear and ICBM missiles of North Korea. The students will learn legal concepts through current events in Korea at the front lines of a changing society, politics and regional security. Because we are in Korea, political consciousness will be raised through analysis of major events i such as the Cheonan incident, mad cow propaganda, Taean oil spill, politization of sinking of Sewol, militant labor unions, etc. In the first half of the course, the student is trained to read and interpret codified law as well as common law, and apply them to factual situations. The second half of the course will be oriented towards seminars by individual presentations and class participation on determining justice behind various legislations and policies. As an application of contracts law, initial public offering and employee options will be covered as an introduction to high tech businesses, prevalent in Asia`s connection with the Silicon Valley.
