Course Description

After briefly emphasizing the introduction to the course on the "roots" of the European idea and on the different approaches that have been the driving force behind the construction of Europe since the Second World War, the course chooses to first examine the organizations and institutions of the "Europe of Cooperation", focusing in particular on European cooperation in the field of defense (WEU, OSCE, NATO, etc.), in economic matters (OECD, EFTA, etc.) and European cooperation on human rights (Council of Europe and European Convention on Human Rights). In a second part, the "Europe of integration" is considered, and study is more specifically centered around the main characteristics, as well as the main institutions of the European Union.
