Course Description

This course examines the role that financial markets play in the business environment. It also provides an understanding of the underlying institutions that either help financial markets work well or that interfere with the efficient performance of these markets. The course also develops a series of applications of principles from finance and economics that explore the connection between financial markets and the economy. In addition, it focuses on many public issues and examines how the central bank, one of the most important players in financial markets, operates and studies the effects monetary policy on the economy. Text: Frederic S. Mishkin, "THE ECONOMICS OF MONEY, BANKING, AND FINANCIAL MARKETS" Assessment: Class attendance (10%), Participation (5%), Midterm (35%), Final (50%) Prerequisites: Introductory courses in Economics and Finance, Business mathematics or mathematics for economics
