COURSE DETAIL

RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE AND INTOLERANCE IN EARLY MODERN EUROPE
Country United Kingdom - England
Host Institution University College London
Program(s) University College London
UCEAP Course Level Upper Division
UCEAP Subject Area(s) Religious Studies History
UCEAP Course Number 102
UCEAP Course Suffix
UCEAP Official Title RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE AND INTOLERANCE IN EARLY MODERN EUROPE
UCEAP Transcript Title RELIG/EARLY MOD EUR
UCEAP Quarter Units 6.00
UCEAP Semester Units

4.00

Course Description

The course examines the relations between Europe’s different religious groups – the various Christian denominations chiefly, but also Christians and Jews – in the centuries between the Reformation and the French Revolution. With the Reformation, a once-united western Christendom split into hostile, warring camps. Despite the ideals of toleration and religious freedom championed by some thinkers, actual social relations between the groups remained intensely problematic to the very end of the early modern period.

Language(s) of Instruction
English

Host Institution Course Number
HIST0244

Host Institution Course Title
RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE AND INTOLERANCE IN EARLY MODERN EUROPE

Host Institution Course Details
https://www.ucl.ac.uk/module-catalogue/modules/religious-tolerance-and-intolera…

Host Institution Campus
University College London

Host Institution Faculty

Host Institution Degree
bachelors

Host Institution Department
History

Course Last Reviewed
2021-2022

Print