Course Description

This course provides a systematic examination of the policy process in the context of developed nations and the key theories and models in the study of public policy. The course encourages a critical appreciation of the main trends in contemporary public policy-making. Students look at the different stages of the "policy cycle" such as agenda-setting, implementation and evaluation. Students study the determinants of public policy such as public opinion, political parties, and technology as well as central themes in the study and practice of public policy, such as corruption and risk management.
