Course Description
In this course, students learn to work with and present various texts taken from the fields of Economics/Business Administration and Technology. Learning objectives include: to read, understand and compose academic texts; to practice oral and written argumentation; to give presentations. There is a special focus on topics that relate to the participants' field of study, and students' personal academic interests help shape the class. The class also discusses news taken from the fields of economics, business administration, and technology. Students in the class review and consolidate selected grammatical phenomena, which often occur in academic texts and/or which the participants want to focus on.
