Course Description

This course introduces students to the structure of the British political system and the functioning of British politics in practice. Students start by exploring the social foundations of politics in the UK, looking at the roles of various national identities and of class, gender, and ethnicity. They also explore the main institutions and players in the UK system, setting these within a comparative context. Students seek to understand how the various parts of the system interact with each other in determining the character of the democratic process and the nature of policy outcomes.
