Course Description
This course concentrates on the theory and practice of effective Human Resources Management (HRM) from a global perspective. The course examines HRM in the Asia-Pacific region, an important player in the global economy accounting for almost 37% of the world GDP, home to about half of the world's population; China, the second largest economy; and India, the third most important destination for global foreign direct investment (FDI). The Asia-Pacific region as a whole remains diverse in terms of standards of living. Mature economies, such as Australia and Japan, other countries with large numbers of consumers and investors, such as Indonesia (with a population of over 200 million) or the Philippines and Vietnam, whose populations (around 90 million). The ASEAN countries as a whole represent more than 500 million inhabitants. As a result HRM in this region has become of significant importance to organization and management across the globe.
