Course Description
This course provides a critical analysis of contemporary Spanish history (from the Cádiz Cortes to the present) from a political perspective and with reference to the greater European context. The main themes of the course are divided into five sections: the formation of liberal Spain (1808-1874); the Restoration (1875-1931) -- economic, social and cultural outlook of Spain between 1900 and 1930, the war in Cuba and "regenerationism", and the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera (1923-1930); the crisis of the 1930s (1931-1939) -- the reformist biennium, the Radical-CEDA biennium, causes, stages and development of the Spanish Civil War; Franco's Spain (1939-1975) -- postwar period and the repression, economic, social and political transformations during the dictatorship; democracy in Spain (1975-present) -- origins of the transition to democracy, the centrist period, the socialist period, and the government of the Popular Party (1996-2004). NOTE: Course is the same as HIST 108, but taught in English.
