Course Description

This course offers a survey of Buddhist philosophy as it developed in India from the time of the Buddha up to its “Golden Age” in the first millennium CE. The teachings of the historical Buddha, Siddharta Gautama, put forth profound insights into the nature of existence, as well as a radical critique of the society and thought in his time. The course examines how later philosophers in India developed the ethical and metaphysical implications of Buddha's teachings of non-self , impermanence, and suffering, especially by combining meditative practice with philosophical analysis and argument.
