Course Description

The course highlights adolescent health, family planning, pregnancy and childbirth, abortion, sexual identity, sexual coercion and violence, and sexually transmitted diseases including HIV/AIDS. Perspectives of gender, poverty, sustainability and rights serve as general themes. The topics discussed include evidence-based strategies and interventions related to each theme. The course covers socio-cultural differences through discussions of global challenges such as cervical cancer, female genital mutilation, trafficking and sexual violence in relation to existing theories and current research results. Reflections and discussions of ethical issues and approaches in relation to abortion, genital mutilation, sexual identities and violence take place through participation in different values exercises. The development of international programs and policies, and the discourse used within them, are highlighted. Global as well as regional/local policy documents on sustainability and rights perspectives are studied and discussed.
