Course Description
This course explores the artistic achievements of early China using artifacts recovered from archaeological excavations. The course introduces painted and black pottery and the ritual and ornamental jades from the Neolithic period; oracle bone script, ritual bronze vessels, bronze weapons and musical instruments, painted lacquers, and ritual and ornamental jades of the Bronze Age; and the beginnings of contact with nomadic cultures and pictorial representation in bronze, silk, and clay. Students emerge with a multifaceted picture of the cultural and artistic legacy of early China, ready for in-depth studies in the arts of the period.
