Course Description

The European Union, born out of the ashes of the World War II, was one of the grand political projects of the twentieth century and is today a major actor. Students need to have knowledge of the European institutions and fundamental notions of the law of the European Union. This course presents the actors in the European construction and the mechanisms that help make decisions. It analyzes the legal order of the Union, notably in terms of respecting fundamental laws. Students study the perspectives introduced by the notion of European citizenship and look at the current questions that influence the European Project.
