Course Description

What is meant by "racism"? Charges of racism are seemingly everywhere – in the workplace, in the streets, in everyday interactions. But what exactly is racism? Is it beliefs about racial inferiority or superiority? Is it found in actions and consequences whether people intended to be racist or not? This course reviews various theories of racism, and critically assesses how changing conceptualizations of racism arise in specific, sociopolitical contexts. It also examines whether a color-blind future is desirable and/or possible.
