Course Description

This course provides a basic overview of the role of sport in the Czech Republic from historical, sociological, and political perspectives. Students are acquainted with current trends in the society and their influence on the development and practice of outdoor activities. The main topics include the concept of Czech physical culture and the outdoor concept of “turistika,” a nation-specific type of hiking. The course also examines some contemporary sports-related issues from an inter-disciplinary perspective, including violence, cheating, doping, and technologies in sport.
