

COURSE DETAIL

RACE AND RACISM IN POLITICAL THEORY

Country

United Kingdom - England

Host Institution

King's College London

Program(s)

King's College London

UCEAP Course Level

Upper Division

UCEAP Subject Area(s)

Political Science International Studies

UCEAP Course Number

151

UCEAP Course Suffix*UCEAP Official Title

RACE AND RACISM IN POLITICAL THEORY

UCEAP Transcript Title

RACE IN POL THEORY

UCEAP Quarter Units

6.00

UCEAP Semester Units

4.00

Course Description

The course addresses the place of race and racism in Western and non-Western political theory (to the extent that these should even be considered separate entities). The course fosters a conversation between a variety of different Western and non-Western thinkers in order to ask questions as how important ideas of race are or should be in political theory, how certain ideas of race came to dominate in certain contexts, how explicit or implicit racism is in certain thinkers and ideologies, whether we should consider key thinkers to be racist or whether those ideas can be separated from their other political arguments, and what it means when such questions are overlooked.

Language(s) of Instruction

English

Host Institution Course Number

6SSPP375

Host Institution Course Title

RACE AND RACISM IN POLITICAL THEORY

Host Institution Campus

Strand Campus

Host Institution Faculty

Host Institution Degree

bachelors

Host Institution Department

Political Economy

Print