Course Description

This course examines and analyzes the creative and business aspects of producing professional projects for film and television. Students apply this analysis in the creation of two presentations and a production plan. The course follows a lecture-based format and students receive a mixture of instruction and hands-on training through lectures and assignments. Students complete three core assignments: a pitching presentation, a production plan, and a research presentation designed to provide students with an in-depth and practical understanding of creative and business producing for film and television.
