Course Description
This survey course provides an overview of the political, social, and cultural history of the territories that we now know as China. It covers the time from the ancient world of the Shang people through the foundations of empire, its north south fracture under nomadic rule to the cosmopolitan culture of medieval times, and the centralizing narrative of an unbroken Chinese civilization. Lectures focus on the diversity revealed by archaeological evidence, the impact of the Han history makers and their myths of the culture bringers, the coming of Indian Buddhism, trade, travel, and religion along the Silk Routes.
