Course Description

This is a systematic introduction to the problems of phenomenology. Topics like intentionality, consciousness, perception, memory, imagination, pictures, symbols, life world, intersubjectivity are discussed. This course aims to offer a gradual understanding of the substantial operation of the so-called phenomenological method and the necessary knowledge for comprehending the development of phenomenology as well. Fundamental concepts of phenomenology are explicated and illustrated, and the relevance of these concepts to our contemporary human condition are demonstrated.
