Course Description
This course gives students an overview of the history of the English-speaking world from the end of the eighteenth century to the onset of globalization during the twentieth. It studies such themes as the slave-trade, industrial revolution, imperial expansion, military conflict, Commonwealth, culture and identity. The course is designed to help students understand the major ideas, events and social/political movements which have sometimes brought the English-speaking countries together, and sometimes driven them apart. The main objective is to provide students with a synthesis of the evolution of the British World and to enable them to understand better how the challenges of a more diverse international system have progressively and profoundly affected the character and geopolitical role of the United Kingdom.
