Course Description

This course examines lived experiences and life narratives - ours' and others' - to examine the relationship between the past and the present, individuals and different types of social life, the public and the private, the local and the (trans)national. Topics include identity and representation (including self-representation), power and ethics, the complexities of memory, as well as possibilities afforded by different forms of life writing, which encompass personal essays, memoirs, biographies, diaries, letters, oral histories, family histories and blogs.
