Course Description

The course explores questions regarding intersectionality, decolonial theory, and queer theory. It personalizes these themes through an examination of experiences and contexts through cultural analysis and intervention or creative projects outside of the classroom. The class also problematizes the various institutions of hegemony, and grapples with the various critiques and ways forward proposed by both Latin American and Western theorists and connects these back to the Mexican context. Also corresponds to partner university codes: 1047, 1048, 1049, 1050, 1051, 1052, 1053, 1054
