Course Description
This course looks at the rise of China from the perspective of global governance and specifically sheds light on its diplomatic, trade and cultural relations with others in the global community. It provides a critical analysis on the transformation of Chinese foreign policies since the establishment of the People's Republic of China and the momentum behind this change of practices. This course covers such topics as the history and evolution of Chinese foreign policies; the analytical framework of policy-making process in China, particularly in handling foreign and security affairs; China's foreign relations with both the developed and developing nations; Chin's booming economy and integration with the global economy; and assessment on the rhetoric of Peaceful Rise and Charm Offensive with reference to the Confucius Institute.
