Course Description

This course introduces students to examples of youth cultures from around the world, puts them in context, and provides conceptual and theoretical frameworks to help analyze and understand them. It explores a number of key themes and ideas, including identity, resistance/threat, class, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, fandom, and the digital. The course looks at how youth culture can be seen in relation to culture, media, and creative industries, and the connections and tensions between creativity, agency, and commodification.
