COURSE DETAIL

THE POLITICS OF MAKING MIGRANTS
Country Denmark
Host Institution University of Copenhagen
Program(s) University of Copenhagen
UCEAP Course Level Upper Division
UCEAP Subject Area(s) Political Science
UCEAP Course Number 133
UCEAP Course Suffix
UCEAP Official Title THE POLITICS OF MAKING MIGRANTS
UCEAP Transcript Title POL/MAKING MIGRANTS
UCEAP Quarter Units 12.00
UCEAP Semester Units 8.00

Course Description

This course explores how the conceptualization of migration is related to ideas about citizenship and belonging, and to the racialization of those positioned as foreign. It draws together theorizations, historical background, and concrete examples of contemporary politics to discuss what migration is and who is considered a migrant. It considers the political effects of conceptualizing migration, such that although each state sets immigration rules, the making of migrants is at the same time impacted by how global politics is regulated and imagined, including international norms on refugees or states' self-perception as open to the world. This interactive course includes group work and lecture-style elements, interacts with a variety of texts, and provides opportunities to reflect on and learn about writing.

Language(s) of Instruction
English

Host Institution Course Number
ASTK18373U

Host Institution Course Title
THE POLITICS OF MAKING MIGRANTS

Host Institution Course Details
https://kurser.ku.dk/course/astk18373u/2022-2023

Host Institution Campus

Host Institution Faculty
Faculty of Social Sciences

Host Institution Degree
Bachelor

Host Institution Department
Political Science, Anthropology, Social Data Science

Course Last Reviewed

2022-2023

Print