Course Description

This course enables students to improve their creative prose writing skills, both fiction and creative non-fiction. The emphasis is on practice rather than text-based study. Students explore story structure, sense of place, character and point of view as well as techniques for approaching the personal essay. Through writing exercises and other written stimulus, the workshop element of the course will allow students to experiment with different forms and techniques as well as developing original ideas and material. Students also gain experience of evaluation and the ability to effectively critique the work of their peers.
