Course Description

The course examines children's literature to find topics appearing in contemporary culture. It explores the question 'What is the value of our (adults') reading of children's and adolescents' literature?' Topics include the nature of a child and their growth; nature or animals versus human beings, science and dystopia; and imaginary space of fantasy, trauma and recovery, compassion and complicity, elements of storytelling , etc. It also discusses English-teaching methodology through the use of children's literature.
