Course Description

The course explores the doctrines and principles of English Criminal Law. It begins with an overview of the building blocks of criminal responsibility: the different forms of mens rea, the rules of causation, and the principles underlying the imposition of criminal responsibility. It then considers a number of different offences (including murder, manslaughter, grievous bodily harm, assault occasioning actual bodily harm, sexual offences, and property offences) and defenses (consent, self-defense, duress, and insanity).
