Course Description

The course is based on field studies and visits to important places of interest, museums, archives, libraries, laboratories, etc., which give students a glimpse behind the scenes. Students visit places from the middle ages to the present time, even into the future. The course is multidisciplinary and discusses art, architecture, objects, ideas, science, and other topics that form a university. After this course students have a richer understanding of Lund and its university, how it has emerged since the seventeenth century and how it has been formed in a global world.
