Course Description

This course is an examination of the Western Balkans' path to the European Union, with an emphasis on the post-1989 developments. It looks at the course content through political, economic, historical, and international perspectives. Over the semester the focus is on the ever-developing relationship between the EU and the Western Balkans, EU approaches towards integration, conditionality mechanisms, and individual paths of the seven new republics created after the dissolution of Yugoslavia. Topics include: Balkans in Europe; the Dissolution of Yugoslavia and its Consequences; EU conditionality and the accession mechanisms; state-building, democratization, Europeanisation, and transformation of the Balkans.
