Course Description

This course focuses on language and culture of the Spanish speaking countries. The starting point is Spain and Spanish America today, the current societies and the issues they face. Language learning prepares for communication with native speakers and acquiring the functional tools for establishing and maintaining interactions with Spanish speaking people. Culture, history and literature are addressed via documents (written and audiovisual) in Spanish and detailed on a weekly basis in the course description. Tasks in various forms related to these topics are performed mainly individually. The study guide contains information necessary for acquiring the required exit level of the language which is Advanced Low. It also marks pace and progress, and deadlines through the semester. Prerequisites for this course is a beginning level Spanish course.
