Course Description
The course analyzes the historical trajectory of India's foreign policy by reviewing the thematic and geographical entry points over the last fifty years. It considers the contrast between Nehru's idealistic, international perspective of the world and the realistic, internally focused vision of his successors Indira Gandhi and Rajiv Gandhi. In addition to diplomatic and military developments, transnational actors like the diaspora are also considered. Topics covered in the course are: the cardinal points of India's Foreign Policy; India-Pakistan relations; India-US relations; India-China relations; strategic partnership with the URSS/Russia; facets of Multilateralism; the Pakistan - Afghanistan - Iran conundrum seen from India: multiples crises, multiples challenges; India's Look East Policy; New Delhi's Policy vis-à-vis India's Diaspora; India and the multilateral order; India's strategic vision and defense policy; from non-alignment to the BRICS.
