Course Description

The course explores the broad topic of phonetics by employing phonetic transcription to look at spoken English of various varieties and possibly also other languages around the world. Readings and homework assignments provide an extensive survey of speech sounds in English, and a course project in phonetic description provides hands-on application of the topics discussed in class. The pronunciation practicum offers a recitation period for students to apply what they have learned from lectures to actual pronunciations Text: Ladefoged, P. & Johnson, K. 2011. A COURSE IN PHONETICS. Assessment: participation (5%), homework (15%), quizzes (10%), midterms (20%), final (15%), practicum (10%), journal (10%), project (15%).
