Course Description
This course covers discussions and debates surrounding modern culture. It looks at why culture has always been such a contested sphere and has a decisive impact on society at large. Students examine culture in the widest sense, ranging from “the arts” to the banalities of everyday life in our consumer society. They explore how culture has expressed and organized the way people think and live from the days of Protestantism to those of post-punk. The course utilizes books, magazines, radio, TV, movies, cartoons, fashion, graffiti, cult of celebrity, youth subcultures, and pop music to understand class, history, sexuality, colonialism, revolution, conflict, and globalization.
