Course Description

This course covers the skills and knowledge necessary to carry out a collaborative research study in small groups to perform a literature search on a given topic; design a short research study; collect responses to create a data set; analyze collected data, using descriptive analysis (for example, means and standard deviations) for inclusion in a final research report; and individually, to write a final research report. Computer-based workshops give students practical experience and competence in working with data entry and descriptive analysis.
