This course introduces students to a variety of questions, methods, and concepts underlying Irish Studies, with particular focus on archaeology, historical archaeology, and social history. A central theme of the lectures and seminars is the complexity of the processes through which identity is constructed through time. The course asks a series of provocative and stimulating questions about ideas of Ireland and Irishness. The course also provides students with an understanding of the breadth of archaeological and historical knowledge and perspectives on “Ireland” and “Irishness"; the complex and dynamic ways in which Ireland and Irishness have been conceptualized; and facilitates engagement within the field of Irish Studies.
