Course Description
This course examines key issues in contemporary Mexican history using both a chronological review of relevant historical milestones and a sociological approach. It provides a critical analysis of some of the most pressing aspects of the contemporary scene, such as NAFTA's impact on Mexico, Mexico's transition to electoral democracy, as well as crucial environmental aspects, such as water resource consumption and waste management. The course includes field-visits and guest speakers. Assessment is based on attendance, weekly readings and quizzes, and final exam.
