Course Description

The course develops a systematic understanding of the key areas of the world economy – trade, investment, and finance – and how they impact on each other. Theory is applied to international economic events, issues, and trends. As the international economic environment is dynamic in nature and is impacted by real world developments in business, politics, and finance, the course coverage is updated periodically to include current real world evidence as well as recent academic and empirical findings. As such, during the semester topics to be analyzed include Brexit (Britain's exit from the European Union), the political economy of immigration, and the return of resource nationalism.
