Course Description
This course provides an introduction to the study of the human mind and higher level cognition. The course provides a foundation in human thinking, in particular to familiarize students with contemporary explanations from the interdisciplinary perspective of cognitive science, drawing on evidence from cognitive psychology, artificial intelligence, linguistics, philosophy, and cognitive neuroscience. The course provides an understanding of the conceptual underpinnings of the study of higher level cognition; analyses of various aspects of thinking, including creativity , reasoning, problem solving, decision making, and of some relevant aspects of long term memory; and discussion of current challenges in the study of higher level cognition, including the relation of thinking and emotion, and the problem of consciousness.
