Course Description
The BOOK OF KELLS, one of the greatest treasures of Trinity College, is perhaps the most renowned illustrated manuscript of the early medieval period. This course, benefiting from several recent scholarly contributions, enables the students to learn both the theology and the iconography of this wonderful manuscript. The course also introduces the students to the world in which this manuscript was created, and to some other aspects of insular art. The course is designed to be accessible not only to theology students but also to students coming from other disciplines who have an interest in the Ireland of the early medieval world.
