Course Description
The focus of this course is an examination of the changes associated with urban development in Berlin and “counter actions” as urban social movements. This interdisciplinary course explores urban activism in Berlin through several lenses including: housing, urban environmental activism, community gardening, and political power relations in the city. From the perspective of urban activism, this course offers an analysis of the origin, context, and structure of theory of right to the city, urban commons, social justice, participation, grassroots organizing, and urban development policy. Within the broad theme of urban activism, the course focuses on the ways in which neighborhood/inhabitant experiences and citizens' efforts collide to produce different forms of resistance within Berlin's political sphere.
