Course Description

This course is offered for senior undergraduates majoring in economics and management. This course aims to introduce the role of the government in a market where the equilibrium of competition is "failed", and to cultivate students' ability to analyze real regulatory issues using the relevant principles of microeconomic theory and industrial organization theory.

This course will emphasize the importance of market structure, corporate interaction and industrial performance, and focus on the complementary role of regulation and the market. This course will be divided into four parts: the first part will briefly introduce the economics of regulation, the second part will study anti-monopoly, and the third and fourth parts will study economic regulation and social regulation respectively.
