Course Description
This course introduces students to the full range of the material and visual culture of the ancient world. Students explore the different perspectives and methods of both archaeologists and art historians in interpreting material remains and visual images. The course combines close study of individual pieces of evidence with an evaluation of how they illuminate the societies, cultures, institutions, and economies of classical antiquity. The course draws heavily from the extraordinary collections in London, particularly the British Museum. This is a semester only version of a year-long course, focusing only on the ancient Greek world.
