Course Description

This course examines digital technologies while exploring the motion picture as an artistic medium for creative self-expression, visual experimentation, critical commentary, social engagement, and personal storytelling. It covers lighting, framing, focus, camera positioning, color, movement, editing, sound design, space, time, motion, montage, short treatments, scripts, storyboards, festival publicity material, as well as narrative structure in fiction and nonfiction film. It explores ideas and concepts from other art forms such as fine art, literature, drama, dance, architecture and music in order to effectively communicate meaning on screen.
