COURSE DETAIL

REGIONAL VARIATION IN ENGLISH
Country United Kingdom - England
Host Institution University of Sussex
Program(s) University of Sussex
UCEAP Course Level Upper Division
UCEAP Subject Area(s) Linguistics English
UCEAP Course Number 133
UCEAP Course Suffix
UCEAP Official Title REGIONAL VARIATION IN ENGLISH
UCEAP Transcript Title REGIONL VARIATN/ENG
UCEAP Quarter Units 6.00
UCEAP Semester Units 4.00

Course Description

This course provides an introduction to regional variation in the English language. The course is divided between an overview of the types of variation found and a practical part in which students have the opportunity to explore an aspect of variation and/or change in an original research project. The first part discusses aspects of accent variation, looking at major parameters of phonological differences and introducing some key accents in greater detail, and also explores grammatical and lexical differences between different regional varieties. Attention is also given to "new" Englishes and creoles and their phonological, lexical and grammatical features. The second part provides students with the tools to conduct their own empirical analysis, including methods of data collection and an introduction to phonetic analysis software.

Language(s) of Instruction
English

Host Institution Course Number
Q1081

Host Institution Course Title
REGIONAL VARIATION IN ENGLISH

Host Institution Course Details
https://www.sussex.ac.uk/study/modules/undergraduate/2021/Q1081-regional-variat...

Host Institution Campus
University of Sussex

Host Institution Faculty

Host Institution Degree
Bachelors

Host Institution Department

English and Linguistics

Course Last Reviewed
2021-2022

Print