Course Description

This course is for foreign students as the second semester of a beginning Chinese course. It covers four main areas: speaking, listening, reading, and writing which require pinyin-word processing and actual writing and reading of simplified Chinese characters. A greater emphasis is placed on oral drills and listening comprehension. Students are exposed to 800 frequently used Chinese characters, which are used to form expressions related to various aspects of life in China. Upon the completion of the course, students should be able to write approximately 500 Chinese characters and an essay of 200 characters. Students are also exposed to various aspects of Chinese culture and history in learning the origins of Chinese characters and idioms.
