Course Description

This course is an introduction to the skills and principles involved when working with people, in a voluntary or paid capacity. It is a requirement that students have work experience to draw upon. The focus of this course is on the practical work experiences that the students bring and the tutorial discussion analyzing those experiences. During the tutorials students are encouraged to engage in reflection upon their own and others work experience. Skill development takes place through participation in group learning, based around presentations and discussion.
