Course Description
This course explores how to deal with projects. The course discusses the knowledge, tools, and best practices useful to plan, manage, and control different projects in order to improve success rates. In the field of project management, knowing the theory is fundamental but applying it in practice is crucial. The course utilizes different teaching methods including distance learning, where class activities are preceded by a distance learning session devoted to explaining the most used and effective project management methods and tools; case studies and simulation, which are used to experience the planning and execution of complex projects; and guest speakers who share their different experiences in project management. The course discusses topics including planning and controlling projects, setting up successful projects, understanding the project environment, managing project risks, and making the correct decisions.
