Course Description

This course provides skills to find, use, and read legal resources (e.g., statutes, cases, and so on) associated with English law. The lectures mainly deal with the law and legal system of England (e.g., what are main legal sources in English law, how English courts are organized, what are main features of the English legal profession, what is the meaning of common law or case law and how it works, and how common lawyers interpret statutes, etc.). The course also provides an understanding of the differences between civil and common law traditions.
